

The Poet as an Image

I'm a personality—a poet of rare fraternity an extension of humanity traced to paternity incubated in maternity, a progeny of eternity.

I smell of femininity—primeness of my sagacity sweetness of my identity cloned in perplexity in subtleness of tenacity an awe of complexity.

I can thrive in anxiety don't bother your sensibility for I know my ability the nudging mood of my capacity spurred by 'Divinity' the Three in One of 'Unity'.

I am a lover of conformity born to live in prosperity a hater of pomposity known for lucidity
I love quantity
but my best is quality.

In totality,
I'm a poet of mental dexterity a mother of modernity thriving in creative generosity in a megacity of no paucity.

This is my validity.
My thoughts of dignity.

Ifeoma Ezinne Odinye, PhD

Senior Lecturer, Department of Language and Literature Nnamdi Azikiwe University, Awka, Nigeria Email: ifeomaodinye@gmail.com ie.odinye@unizik.edu.ng