Abstract
Corona virus is a pandemic that shook the whole world from the last quarter of 2019 to 2020. This virus has the capacity of killing its host in a twinkle of an eye. For this, varieties of words were employed to educate people on how best to prevent the spread of this deadly virus. The effort to analyse these words prompted this study. The study sets out to find out the words that relate to corona virus in Igbo Language, the word formation processes they fall into, their lexical categories, e.t.c. The word based morphological theory serves as the theoretical framework. This study is a qualitative one. Data were collected from My Radio, Orient and Ozisa FM Radio stations all in Owerri. The data were collated severally through careful listening and observations. Pen and paper were used as the instruments for the collection. The study identified words relating to corona virus, the word formation processes, their lexical categories, etc. It was found that loan translation is the most productive, nouns are mostly the lexical categories used, etc. The word based morphological theory to a large extent accounted for the study. The study will add to the studies on corona in Igbo Language, the meanings of words relating to corona virus will be known in Igbo Language and so on. The study suggests that more studies should be carried out to what the present study has done on corona virus related words in Igbo Language.
